The Prospector's Ledger

The Tag Prospector's Draw Doctrine · the book series behind the reports

The Tag Report, the Scout Report, and the Playbook read your points and hand you a personalized answer. The Prospector's Ledger is the other half of the trade: a growing line of standalone e-books, written in Percival's voice, that teach the thinking behind the western big game draw. No point balance required. These are the strategy books you read at the kitchen table in the off-season, so that when the application window opens, you already know your move.

Reading the Vein $19.99 e-book · Available now

Turning points into tags.

A named catalog of western draw strategies, the "Plays." Nineteen named Plays plus a Colorado 2028 bonus chapter, general and state-specific across all five states, showing you how to read the points you're holding into the right move: where to cash in, where to keep building, and where the vein's run dry.

The Point-Creep Reckoning Coming soon · In production

Demographics, Points Decay, and Hunter Attrition.

The deep look at why draw odds drift the way they do. It follows the long arc of point creep: how an aging applicant pool, points inflation, and hunter attrition reshape a draw over decades, and what it means for the points you're stacking today. The authority volume of the series.

More manuscripts are in the works. The Ledger keeps growing, one honest volume at a time. Watch for new titles at thetagprospector.com.
